available in different colours and all appear to be handmade.

The intention is for the user to rearrange these components – attaching shapes to the vase or slotting them inside – to create a variety of personal and playful compositions.

“All of the elements have a distinctly handcrafted appearance and exist in a variety of colours, and together they create poetic compositions that look different from every angle,” said Vitra.

“The arrangements form a fragile balance as contrasting colours and layers converge to yield a new harmony,” added Ronan Bouroullec.

Vases Découpage was first presented by Vitra at the 2019 Salone del Mobile fair in Milan as a design study, and have now been developed for serial production due to their popularity.
